From the President's Pen By Sally Eller

What a wonderful show we had! Gloria Ogdahl, Show Chair, and Ann Addison, Show Secretary, did a fabulous job! We had 82 entries!!! Gloria will be posting her report here, and she will have more details. I also want to thank Janice Bennett for doing such a wonderful job with the trophies, Kelsey Wolf for the impressive raffle table, and Elizabeth Glew for the beautiful ribbons. We had a bit of a scare as we were about to start as a judge from AHTA was startled to see our "fall theme" rosettes as they were not in official UKC colors. When she realized that we were having a limited all-breed show, and these rosettes were for non-licensed classes, she was full of compliments.

David Arthur, our judge, did a fine job and put in over 7 hours in the judging!

Thanks also to Beth Quinn for all her help with the ribbons and trophy table, to Gloria for the delicious and fun cake (see the photos), and to Sue Dearholt and Rina Phillips for coming all the way from Michigan. Bernard De Montellano was our photographer, and you all have seen how wonderful his photos are ---- thanks, Bernard!

I am pleased to report that we had the required quorum for the Annual Meeting (13 members). The meeting itself was quite informal, as all of us were exhausted and at 9:00 pm were still having our non-licensed classes! The slate of officers for 2007-2009 as presented by the nominating committee was elected:

President: Sally Eller	New York State
Vice-President: Gloria Ogdahl	North Carolina
Secretary: Eleni Stevens	California
Treasurer: Ann Addison	South Carolina

Membership Sec: Elizabeth Glew Michigan

New Business for the Annual Meeting was information about our first Obedience Trial! Thanks to Gloria Ogdahl and her excellent connections with the AHTA, we are going to have this Trial on March 28th, 2008 at the Carolina Classic in Hickory, NC. This is very exciting, as getting our UKC Obedience License has been a goal of UPBA since the beginning. Jessica Young, as Obedience Show Chair, as done an awesome job of getting our application to UKC before the September 30th deadline. She has also contracted with a judge, Kathy Griner, of Savannah, Georgia. Gloria Ogdahl is our Obedience Show Secretary. We will have one show that Friday, with a UKC field rep there to assist us, as required by UKC. Gloria and Jessica, as well as Kelsey, will continue on through the weekend stewarding the AHTA shows, for which they will pay us $5 per entry.

Mark you calendars, and make your plans to attend our first Obedience Trial! If you are not experienced in obedience, we will have non-licensed pre-novice classes, so come and join us! Watch our member Yahoo site for entry details.

Thank you all again for my past two years as President of UPBA. I had lots of fun, did lots of learning, and thoroughly enjoyed working with you all.
I'm looking forward to the next two!

Membership Committee From Elizabeth Glew and Eleni Stevens

We currently have 66 members in 24 states / provinces. Our members own more than 325 poodles. 18 members own more than one size of poodle, with 2 members owning all three sizes. Standards are the most popular, gracing the homes of 46 members. 18 members have minis and an elite dozen of our members are owned by toys. Six amazing UPBA members with incredible willpower have somehow managed to have just one poodle! The rest of us have between 2 and 41 each. The average number of poodles per member is 4.9.

South Carolina continues to lead in membership with 8, closely followed by Maryland and New Jersey with 6 each. North Carolina boasts 5 UPBA members. Our midwestern membership has grown a bit recently and we now have 11 members scattered throughout this region. In the west, we are represented by 8 widely spread-out poodle-lovers. Please encourage your poodley friends and acquaintances to join UPBA! If we reach "critical mass" in more areas, we will be able to have shows in other parts of the country. Earlier this year, we had the possibility of holding a show in Texas, but had to pass it up because, with only 3 members in the southwest region, we just didn't have the people-power to pull it off. We have a very nice updated brochure about the club that anyone can print from the files section of our yahoo site. Please consider taking a few to the next dog event you attend!

We're a busy bunch, with 29 of our members active in at least one other dog club besides UPBA and virtually all of us involved in at least one dog activity. Conformation and obedience are the most popular, followed by agility and therapy work. In all, UPBA members participate in at least 20 different dog activities and about a third of our members also breed at least the occasional litter. No danger of boredom with poodles in the house!

Finally, in a tribute to dedication and staying power, 31 of our charter members have remained active in the club.

Illustrated Breed Standard Committee

From Grace Blair and Elizabeth Glew

We need more toy and mini photos showing flat feet, bad bite, poor tail-set, ewe neck, roach back, any of the usual poor things that we see. And a huge added bonus would be movement photos of any of the varieties showing crossing fronts and rears and hackney gait. We have photos of black, silver, white, parti colors but none of apricot, good brown, cafe-au-lait. We would be sure that none of the dogs are identified by neither name nor owner and would most likely be able to cut the photos so that only the particularly bad trait is shown. Of course we need a "perfect" specimen of both toy and mini too.

Braggs & Announcements

Barbara and Ted Browning are the proud owners of Richlin's II, aka: Spike and Murphy Man, aka: Murphy. Spike came to them because someone had two brothers and they did not get along well at all, so when he was 6 months old they needed to find him a home. It turned out they "good twin", so Barb decided to join an obedience class so she could tell clients at the vet clinic what to expect. They competed and did well but discovered agility and that is what Spike loved. They have had poodles since 1962, but this was the first time their dogs did anything but be couch potatoes and take walks! Here is the short list of Spike's accomplishments:

AKC: CD, MX, MXJ,
working on MACH points and legs. In Rally Advanced now.
CPE: Two C-ATCH
titles
NADAC: Elite Level
ASKA: Open Level
UKC: UCD, U-GRACH Eligible for every All Stars since

U-GRACH Richlin's II (Spike)

the beginning, placing in all and won his division for the 2005 All Stars! They are very proud, as they do not have many UKC trials close to them; 3 or 4 at most.

Murphy was also a rescue; at 11 months he had never been out of a cage or named. It took some doing to socialize him, but Barb reports he is a wonderful little dog. Unfortunately, he developed PRA, diagnosed in August of 2005....with a prognosis of only about 6 to 12 months until complete blindness. Barb and her vet researched herbs and vitamins, etc for eye health. She thought if macular degeneration in humans could be helped, maybe they could delay the PRA some. Well, two years later, Murphy is still doing agility with no problems. Sometime a really curved dark tunnel can slow him down. But his eyes seem no worse. He has the usual problems in a dim light and sometimes his peripheral vision is not the greatest, but they have been able to keep him playing for which they are grateful. The eye specialist is quite interested in his progress and they keep him updated.

U-GRACH Murphy Man (Murphy)

Murphy's accomplishments include:

AKC: MX, MXJ

CPE: C-ATCH

UKC U-GRACH achieved in August with three legs to spare. Not quite as speedy as before because he watches Barb for direction now. He can't just follow shoulders etc. as he has good straight ahead vision but to see to his side is probably pretty well gone. He is happy and still anxious to play the games.

Eleni Stevens of Moonstruck Poodles got the OFA preliminary results on her boy, Colonel (Sisco's Return to Sender) that she co-owns with his breeder, Karen Sisco – Excellent.

She and Karen also worked on getting some people together to go to the UKC Show in Claremont, CA on July 21-22. Eleni reports: "This was my first experience showing UKC. I took 4 dogs - two solid and two multi. I had my granddaughter, her friend, and another friend's granddaughter (ages 14, 14 and 11) do most of the showing. One of my puppy buyers came from Scottsdale, Arizona, with her puppy. We had a wonderful time and there were a lot more poodles there than usually show up here on the west coast."

"The Loot"

Ronnie Benware of Benroyal Poodles attended the International Shows in Hutto, Texas July 1st. She is excited to say that Benroyal Truffles (left) is now an International Champion!

At the Denton, TX shows 7-14 and 7-15-07. Truffles became Int'l and UKC CH Benroyal Truffles. He also placed Group 1 on Saturday! Caitlyn, her black toy female, is now UKC CH Benroyal Wildwood Caitlyn (right). She placed Group 2 on Sunday! Toy female Benroyal Amalita From Rio Lobo or "Aimee" (below) took BOB and Group 2 show 1. Show 2 she took BOB and Group 1 on Saturday! On Sunday Show 1 she took BOB and Group 2. Her white toy girl Benroyal Pheebee A Winner took Best Female Show 2, but was beat by a champion mini male for BOB. She was shocked that Pheebee beat Aimee for best female, but the judge said he loved her attitude! They had a great time!

They also attended the Hutto, Tx show on Sunday, September 9th. Benroyal Amalita From Rio Lobo is now a UKC Champion!!!! She went Reserve Best Female show 1! Benroyal Pheebee A Winner took BOB and Group 2 both show 1 and show 2!!! Benroyal Firefly was shown in show 2 and got Reserve Best female! Here's a picture of Pheebee and judge Lorraine Tayeb. She is a champion too, but have to verify points.

Katie Dokken of Whispering Pines Standard Poodles is proud to announce that three of their poodles took part in the PCA OFA ASD Cardiac health screening clinic at PCA's National Specialty show in June and all three tested as free and clear of ASD.

Tested as follows: UKC GRCH WPs Dont Drink The Milk Of DGL, CGC; UKC CH Let's Parti Pierre; and UKC CH WP's Some Like It Red Hot.

UKC GRCH WPs Dont Drink The Milk Of DGL CGC has recently tested as Neonatal Encephalopathy Clear by DNA.

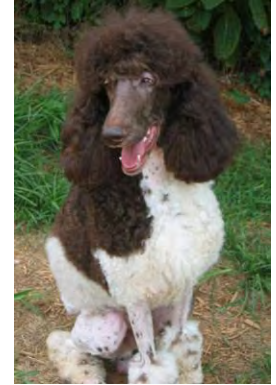

UKC CH Let's Parti Pierre, has recently tested as Neonatal Encephalopathy Clear by DNA.

Katie is also pleased to announce two new champions who earned their titles recently. They are UKC CH Let's Parti Pierre, a brown and white standard parti coated poodle, and UKC CH WP's Dancin' With The Devil, her first home bred phantom coated standard poodle. "Jill" as she's known is famous for actually being born during UPBA's fall show last year causing me to miss the clubs show.

"Petra" a standard phantom earned her UKC Championship at the Beltsville, Maryland shows on September 2, 2007! She is now officially, UKC CH WP's Kickstart My Heart. Petra is another littermate out of the special litter born last year during UPBA's fall show and the second titled dog from that litter now.

CH Let's Parti Pierre (right) earned two Best of Breed placements, and a Gun Dog Group 4th place at the July UKC shows held by the Garden State Kennel club in Bridgeton, New Jersey.

Also, Whispering Pines is proud to announce a new litter of standard poodles out of UKC CH WP's Kaycie Stone Cold Crazy and UKC GRCH Jateko Riders On The Storm. Storm whelped a lovely litter of 7 silvers and 2 whites in August. Both parents are CHIC certified to show that all appropriate health testing was done prior to breeding.

Ch Taj My Dawg of Melody RL1, CGC

Rina Phillips and Sue Dearholt report that their dogs, Taj and Quigley completed their Rally 1 titles at the Minnesota Mixed Breed APDT show in Hugo, MN August 5. You'll notice, Taj has a blue ribbon, amongst his others ...and since the dogs and humans are best friends, and not to be outdone, Quigley can also announce that he received his CHIC #39783. Of course the fact he is old enough to have his hips certified has nothing to do with it! 😊 Photos are courtesy of Crystal Image Pet Photography.

Duck Dames

By Teri Carter
Belle Story Kennel
Camden SC

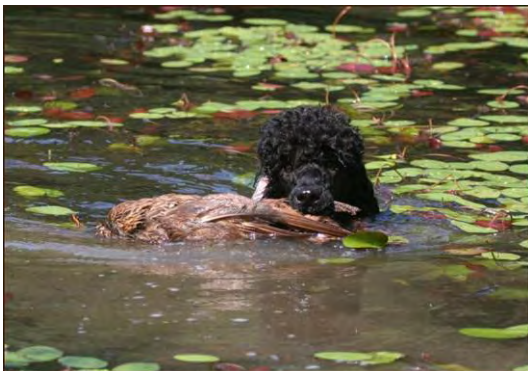

Yes, we are now known as the Duck Dames. We are a group of NC and SC poodle people that are training our dogs to bring out the hopefully innate love for swimming and hunting.

My young guy is Benson—Belle Story Rockingham Victory. Check out his page at <http://www.poodles-in-scandinavia.com/news.htm> . Scroll down to hunting dog. These photos were taken at 6 and 8 months of age.

Benson's love for retrieving showed itself at an early age—as soon as he could walk. I am a big proponent of finding the performance venue that the dog loves and not trying to force a round peg into a square hole. It is such a joy to see them leap off the floor when they know it is their time to “work” That means I have to be open to new adventures myself.

As most poodle people, I have not trained in the hunt field. I found, however, that the hunting people in my area are welcoming and in fact admiring of Benson's abilities. As long as I am serious and take constructive criticism ---all dogs are welcome.

That does not mean that I train the same way that they do. They show me the end desired result of a schooling session and I do it my way. So far, they understand that poodles are soft like spaniels and may take a different line of training to end up with the same desired result. I have a group of friends that train me (UKC test judges—how lucky is that?) and I go to a professional trainer Pam Kadlec. She is a great help. Her book “Retriever Training for Spaniels-Working with soft-tempered, had headed, intelligent dogs” is a must. <http://www.boykinspaniel.com> Yes, I clicker train some of my field work. Another source of information is the Yahoo Group Positive Gun dogs.

My husband laughed out loud when he saw me dressed and ready for my first UKC Hunt Test. He said he had waited 17 years to see me in CAMO. I have found a new exciting way to share time with my dogs and my husband. I hope to train Benson to quail and dove hunt at the very least. Duck hunting would be a plus.

Think about it . Does your poodle want to hunt?

Natural Poodle Protection Instincts

By Lynnette Janes

Teddy Bear's introduction to the grand-kids was when he was 4 months old, right after we got him. It was impossible to tell if Teddy was lovin' them more or they were lovin' him more. The bonding was immediate. There was this sturdy, irresistible little bundle of joy, with his soft, loose curls, climbing all over them and licking each one from head to toe; and they were squealing and enjoying his wild antics. The grand-kids total three - there are the two rowdy boys, Philip and Ben, then 4 and 3, and one girly-girl baby Poppy at 1. Their visits to grandma & grandpa's house are eagerly anticipated and thoroughly enjoyed.

One afternoon, about a year or more after Teddy's arrival, all three g-kids came for a play day. As the sun came out, the 3 kids and I went outside on the brick patio in our backyard with a blanket and some books and toys. We have about 3/4 acre which is fenced with a tall cyclone fence, and mature fir trees and 30-foot arborvitae all around the fence. The grounds are mostly lawn - which is a neat racing arena/running pad for a growing, streaking, paw-pounding, ears flying, fastest Poodle Teddy. Our home is secluded, set back with a long driveway and not viewable from the street.

Teddy Bear was romping around in the grass, keeping on eye on all of us. At that time, I didn't know how much "eye" he actually was keeping on his family. I was concentrating on the kids. The first inkling of a problem was when I heard the cyclone fence gate being "rattled". I assumed Teddy must have jumped against it while on yet another desperate, unsuccessful squirrel chase. I never investigated the noise.

Some people describe a feeling of being watched that I can now relate to, because I felt a sense of someone else in the back yard. I looked up from the patio and saw a stranger, a man holding a screwdriver in one hand, and walking fast over towards us, with no expression on his face. I yelled at the boys to "get inside" and I was leaning over to scoop up the baby when I saw a blur coming in fast from the other side of the yard.

The blur was Teddy, charging at top speed, totally focused on the stranger, legs flying, head low, picking up even more speed. The boys said he was "bad growling". I was busy with the baby and the back door and the next thing I saw was Teddy throwing himself onto the man, his mouth wide, and biting down towards the man's groin and thigh area.

Poodle-Powered Home Protection by Teddy

The man screamed and tried to run the opposite direction. Teddy was not letting go. It was some clumsy, awkward dance of man and dog, with the man back-stepping and twisting, and the dog determined to force him away from us. The man clamored onto the fencing, rolling his body over the top bar, and dropping to the other side. Then Teddy was barking madly, throwing his own body against the fence. We could hear him barking like a dog possessed with fury and rage, jumping high and clanging against the fence, over and over.

I had the kids inside and house and I grabbed the phone to call 9-1-1. I forgot the number. I just looked at the phone like I was frozen. I could hear Teddy's repeated barks, from the bottom of his very deep chest. He was furious and intent.

I was totally shocked, and I remember Philip calling out to me, "Grandma, that man didn't even say HI..." I tried to call my husband, but I forgot his cell number. I remember thinking that Teddy may somehow follow the man over the fence and chase him out into the street. I needed to get to Teddy. I could hear him barking and barking, a new and cruel bark I had never heard from him before. I peered around the corner of the house and only saw Teddy, jumping against the fence. I called Teddy and he reluctantly came to me, trotting over with his usual happy face. I hurried him in the house. The kids immediately surrounded him, with hugs. Teddy rolled over, tongue hanging relaxed out the side of his mouth, while Poppy tickled his nose.

This is what I have told the breeder: He went from wild to mild in the blink of an eye. Amazing. I thought he'd be foaming at the mouth, shaking, growly, angry...some type of reaction to the encounter! - and instead he was "off duty", happy to be the center of attention again with lots of cuddles.

Then, within a minute of two, Teddy stood up and ran to the front door, with his deep barking re-activated. We all ran to the front of the house to see my husband's truck coming down the driveway. My husband is an ex-State Police Officer and as soon as he heard a quick replay of events, he ran around the yard looking for the stranger. Teddy was by his side, acting like he was on a mission, acting like this had happened before, something they had practiced, instead of never-in-out-wildest dreams, sniffing the air, sniffing the ground, keeping step by step with my husband. However, there was no sign of the stranger, he was long gone.

My husband told me the gate rattling is a trick burglars use to see if a "dog" responds. Teddy Bear was on the opposite side of the yard and if he even heard that rattling, he probably thought it was just us playing around. I'm happy to report that it didn't take him long to spring into action. I know in my heart that Teddy saved us. He is ultra protective, AND he can certainly turn if off fast!

Our family sleeps well, knowing Teddy will be watching over us, even if he does share the bed with a couple of kitties. He also shares it with his toy-of-the-day, and his human "mom and dad"...quite the bedful.

It was just over one year after this event that Teddy's instinctive protective actions came into play again. My best friend and her aged, sweet Corgi-doggy came to our beach house and we went for a nature walk in a public garden. Teddy took the lead down the trail and we were chatting about the trees and the pretty day when Teddy literally put on the brakes. He stopped short, backed up to me, forcing me into my friend's dog and then into her. We were a two-people, two-doggy pile up on the trail. He began "the growl", that deep, cruel-sounding vibration from deep inside.... and we knew he meant business. I looked through the trees around the trail bend and saw a man sitting on a reflecting-bench, reflecting away while exposing himself. Too much nature for this nature walk. I gave Teddy some extra leash length and he sprung up in a high leap, barking madly. I let him bark and bark and sound totally threatening. Teddy has a huge bark and enjoyed the reaction from us. The exposor rapidly un-exposed himself and these two grandmas reeled in the dogs and got out of there. Back out on the road, Teddy sat down and waited for a treat then happily completed his walk back home. Just another busy day for my great protector.

Starting Your Poodle in Weight Pulling

By Elizabeth Glew

There are two aspects to weight pulling: mental and physical, with mental being the most important. Naturally, poodles outshine most other breeds at the mental game and, while a poodle will never rival a top-form pit bull or bulldog in the physical arena, with some basic conditioning, poodles can do very well.

Before you can start either the mental or the physical training, your poodle will need a custom-fitted harness. Harnesses by Carol (<http://www.harnessesbycarol.com>) has done an excellent job fitting my dogs. Her prices are reasonable and her delivery times are very good. Don't waste money on anything that's not custom-made for your dog. An off-the-rack harness will be sized for a pit bull or a staffy-bull and will not provide the best fit for your poodle. A perfect fit is crucial, as anything less will reduce your poodle's enjoyment and performance. Be sure to order the extra foam padding at the neck. Poodles need it.

13", 14 lb. UWP UCh Solgay's Havin' A Ball "Lucy"
The front of the harness "Lets go Mom!"

Once your harness arrives, start training the mental game. Resist the temptation to pop the harness on and hook your dog up to a cement block! Instead, lay a strong foundation by introducing your poodle to the harness slowly, and be sure to make it a positive experience. You might try putting the harness on for meals at first, then progress to short walks on grass while wearing it. Once your dog is happy about wearing the harness, you can start teaching the concept of pulling.

She's just getting ready to pull and you can see I've hooked her up to the cart (which weighs 420 lb) The man behind the cart is the braker, who stops the cart when she gets to the end of the chute. The yellow sandbags are what we use for weight. They are 30 lb each.

To introduce the pulling concept, attach a lightweight object, such as an empty ½ gallon milk jug, to the harness and call your poodle to come towards you a few feet. Give lots of rewards for bringing that jug to you! Once you're successful pulling a few feet, you can also take leash walks with your poodle dragging the jug. This stage of training is to help the dog understand that pulling something along behind is a good thing and not scary. Be liberal with the treats during this phase to help establish positive feelings about pulling.

She's just getting started, hasn't really started to pull yet, but you can see her tail is wagging. The faster the cart goes, the faster her tail goes.

By this point, your poodle should be getting excited when you get the harness out. Only after laying this groundwork should you ask your poodle to pull any weight. Start by filling that milk jug with water and call your dog to bring it a few feet to you. Again, reward success generously! Work up to having your poodle pull the jug about 20 feet.

You can back up in front of your dog, providing encouragement and treats along the way. Hold your treats low to the ground in front of your dog to encourage good, headdown form.

She's showing pretty good form, head down, digging in, leaning into the harness.

When your poodle is consistent about pulling the filled milk jug towards you with some enthusiasm, you can start the physical conditioning, commonly called "drag work." Most people use an old tire for this – proportional to the size of the dog of course. Lucy pulls a little tire from a lawn tractor. Gradually work up to a mile a day pulling the tire – always on grass, dirt, or gravel. Never do your drag work on pavement! It's too abrasive and will injure your dog's feet. As always, use rewards liberally to make this a very positive experience. Your poodle should love putting that harness on and pulling!

She's doing the move that impresses all the "big dog" people, really hauling and rotating one shoulder for extra leverage. Typically you see pit bulls and bulldogs doing this, so she's a real crowd pleaser. They don't expect this level of effort from a poodle.

The last step is to combine the mental and physical into the complete pulling poodle. Get a sled of some type (not a wagon because it can roll into the dog's rear) and start having your dog pull some weights towards you about 20 feet. Start out with light weights and go slowly. The key is for your poodle to develop the belief, "If I'm hooked to it, I can move it!" It is important to build up your dog's confidence. Dogs who believe they can do it are the ones who win. Provide lots of encouragement, end every training session with success, and be sure to continue to reward generously.

These basics will get you started. Once you've completed these steps, it's time to find a weight pull club, or at least some training buddies, so you can get your dog accustomed to competition style equipment. Be sure to read the rules, which are available on the UKC web site before, you enter your first pull. Give this fun sport a try. Everyone loves to see a poodle in the chute!

Agility Dog Dictionary

A-frame: a long, slinky-like pipe that is fun to run through.

A-frame

Chute: what your human says when you take the "long slinky-like pipe that is fun to run through" once too often.

COME! go immediately to your human as soon as you're finished with the next three obstacles.

Contact: what your human says to get you to start your engine and take to the skies.

Damnit: a dog title similar to Dr. for humans or MACH for some dogs: e.g., Dr. Smith, MACH Fifi, and Damnit Rex.

Quiet!: means you should cheer on the dog running the course. In the spirit of good sportsmanship, cheer louder for those dogs you don't particularly like, but cheer loudest of all for the dogs that live with you.

STAY!: an agility command that means wait until your human turns her back on you, and then quickly take the first few obstacles while she tries to catch up.

Table: one of the few shady spots on the course.

Teeter: a long slinky-like pipe that is fun to run through.

Teeter

Touch: what your human says to get you to jump over the yellow zone on contact obstacles.

Triple: a long, slinky-like pipe that is fun to run through.

Triple

Tunnel: a long, slinky-like pipe that you run through anytime you don't know which obstacle your human wants you to take. Can also be taken because you prefer it to the obstacle your human wants you to take.

Adipose Derived Stem Cell Therapy in the Treatment of Canine Degenerative Joint Disease Secondary to Conformational Abnormalities

Christine M. Meredith, VMD1

- Chronic degenerative joint disease raises many challenges to the practitioner
- Long term NSAID administration can induce unwanted secondary side effects
- Autologous adipose derived stem cell therapy offers an effective option in treating canine DJD without requiring daily treatment.

1 Author's Address: Tarboro Animal Clinic, 2218 North Main Street, Tarboro, NC 27886

A 4 year 9 month old 6.8kg (15 lb) intact male Rat Terrier named "Harley Blue" presented with a history of chronic lameness in both hind legs, a 6 month duration of refusal to go up steps, stiffness after rising from a laying position, and difficulty stretching. The dog also preferred lying to sitting. The lameness had persisted since 6 months of age. Previous diagnostic testing by the referring veterinarian included radiographs. Interpretation of those films revealed conformational abnormalities in both femurs and tibia. Management of this problem had included exercise restriction and NSAID therapy utilizing 25mg Rimadyl® (carprofen) once daily orally. The owner presented "Harley" because of gastrointestinal upset that had recently developed after administration of the NSAID. Pain was elicited upon flexion and extension of both hips and stifles which manifested as vocalization and an attempt at biting the examiner. "Harley" was radiographed under sedation with intravenous Propofol (Propofol) and bilateral hip dysplasia, conformational abnormalities of the femurs and tibia, and stifle degenerative joint disease was evident. Rimadyl® (carprofen) was discontinued and the owner was advised to temporarily feed a modified diet.

One week later, the patient re-presented to have an adipose tissue collection performed for intra-articular stem cell therapy. A pre-anesthetic panel revealed: ALT= 62 (10-100); ALKP 94 (23-212); TP 8(5.2-8.2); GLUC= 128 (77-125); BUN= 16(7-27); CREA= 1.1 (.50-1.8); PCV=42%.

A 20 gauge 1 inch catheter was placed in the right cephalic vein and induction with 90mg (.9cc) ketamine/ 4.6mg (.9cc) diazepam intravenously was followed by direct intubation and maintenance with isoflurane and oxygen. The patient was placed in dorsal recumbency and the surgical site was clipped, prepped and draped in standard fashion. The patient was monitored by pulse oximetry, continuous ECG and blood pressure. A 5cm linear incision was made over the right inguinal fat pad. The subcutaneous tissues were separated using blunt dissection and 15 grams of adipose tissue was obtained. The tissue was directly placed into the collection vial and shipped overnight to the Vet-Stem™ laboratory in Poway, California.

The subcutaneous tissues were closed using 3-0 synthetic monofilament absorbable suture in a simple interrupted, bury the knot pattern minimizing dead space. The skin was closed with a subcuticular pattern and externally with stainless steel staples. The patient was administered 1mg (.3cc) Buprenex (buprenorphine) IV post-operatively. The recovery period was uneventful and the patient was discharged that afternoon. Vet-Stem™ processing of the adipose sample yielded 81.3% viable cells with 420,000 cells per gram of tissue for a total viable cell yield of 5.6 million cells. The stem cells were returned via overnight courier within 48 hours of the original collection.

The patient was again induced with ketamine and diazepam via intravenous catheterization, intubated and maintained on isoflurane and oxygen. The dorsolateral area over the left coxo-femoral joint and the cranial aspect of the left stifle was clipped and prepped in standard fashion. The previously mentioned patient monitoring parameters were again utilized. Using sterile technique each syringe was rolled similar to re-suspending insulin until a uniform consistency was attained. Using a 1 ½ inch 22 gauge needle, 1 cc of the cellular suspension (1.5 million cells) was injected into each joint in step-wise fashion so that sterile technique was not breached. The injection sites were covered with sterile 3x3 gauze and a trimmed piece of Elasticon. These bandages were allowed to remain on the patient throughout the remainder of the day. The process was repeated in the right coxo-femoral joint and stifle. During recovery, 1mg (.3cc) Buprenex (buprenorphine) was administered intravenously. The patient was again discharged that afternoon.

A 2 week post-procedure recheck was performed during which time the stainless steel staples were removed and the inguinal incision was assessed. The patient had not had any NSAID therapy in 22 days. The owner reported 6 days after the procedure the patient was more active, showed interest in playing, and attempted to go up the stairs. By 13 days post-procedure, the patient was running in their yard, playing with his ball, going up the stairs and sitting up on his hind legs to beg for a treat. The owner even commented that their neighbor had noticed the dramatic improvement in the dog's attitude and activity level. To date, "Harley" has not had to take any NSAIDs and his owners are more than pleased with the results.

Intra-articular use of adipose derived stem cells has been documented to induce long-term pronounced clinical improvement in equine patients, improving lameness scores, minimizing or eliminating the need for palliative medical management, and increasing the rate of return to function. To date, this is the first documented clinical application of autologous adipose derived stem cell therapy in canine degenerative joint disease. Additional patient evaluation will be performed over the next months to quantify duration of pain relief and the presence, if any, of radiographically evident changes in the affected joints. Vet-Stem™ technology, utilizing the benefits of autologous adipose-derived stem cell therapy, can be an effective method in managing otherwise difficult cases of canine osteoarthritis and degenerative joint disease.

Our First UKC Show

By Grace Lossman, Belcanto Standard Poodles

The date was June 30th, 2007 and myself and four of our family converged on East Freehold Park, NJ. Our family was Arwen (Lemerle Spotlight On Belcanto), Laura (Tiara She Loves You), Zac (Belcanto Isaac Stern de Tiara) and Gandalf (Windy Hill's Gandalf the Grey). Somehow we had gotten here and were still in one piece!

Let's back up a little and look at the preceding days. While not new to showing in Conformation, we were totally new to UKC Conformation Shows and I was totally new to showing my own dogs. I had never been in an AKC Conformation ring. We were great with agility but Conformation was totally new. Oh, I do hope I do not make a fool of myself! But there is only one way to learn so we forged ahead. Why on earth did I ever enter four dogs, one would have been enough to get used to this. Thoughts raced through my mind and my heart threw in extra lub-bub's.

We had entered in advance because it was a little less expensive. I had called the Show Secretary to get some insight as to how to enter and learned of "Temporary Listing" or "TL" numbers which could be gotten online at the UKC website. At least that was done.

Oh goodness, I don't know how to put up a topknot! I wonder if we are late for our class?

We parked and I ran to get our arm bands and learned that the same arm band is used the entire weekend – this makes things simpler! Everyone told me to relax and catch my breath as there was plenty of time. Next I went to the gate to see how many dogs were ahead of us, bumped into Linda Howard and learned about putting up a topknot, UKC style. And, I was again reminded to relax. Relax, how could I? I entered 4 dogs! But, everywhere I went the same scenario was repeated – people helping me, telling me to relax!

As the morning wore on, I started to learn to slow down a little and, quite literally, I couldn't open my mouth to ask a question without someone, anyone, turning to help me. I soon started to tell people that, "...UKC was the NADAC agility of the Conformation world". Here were competitors, judges, everyone, helping each other.

Finally it was our turn to go in the ring and since Laura and Arwen were in the same class, I again had someone jumping up to offer to take one in the ring for me. I took Arwen and the other lady took Laura. I promptly told the Judge, Herbert Rosen, that I was brand new to UKC and to Conformation as well and didn't know what I was doing. He laughed and said "...no one does the first time", putting me totally at ease. He guided me throw every step and helped at every turn. Arwen won her class! Then with our kind judge still guiding me Arwen proceeded to win Best of Breed!

What a way to start – this was my first time in a UKC ring!

Yes, we had a show in the afternoon and Laura won Best Female that time. This was such fun as well – not just one show per day but two!

That night at home after feeding and caring for my dogs I jumped onto the computer to find out the date of the next UKC show – I just couldn't wait. This was truly great with everyone helping and pitching in to take care of each other. I think I was in love again!

So, the moral of my story is that it's never too late and don't worry about knowing nothing – just go and have a great time!

3rd ANNUAL SHOW

Friday, September 21, 2007

Hickory, North Carolina

By Gloria Ogdahl, Show Secretary

WOW!! is the first thing that came to mind. What a wonderful entry!! We had no idea that there would be as many DOS entries, as last year we only had one.

We had a few problems here and there, but all in all I think most everyone had a good time. Most of all I appreciated the way that many UPBA members stepped in and helped where it was needed.

The ribbons and trophies were beautiful, just right for our fall show. And Kelsey did another great raffle table.

David was thrilled to be able to judge for us, it meant so much to him.

Looking back, I wish we could set aside times for short seminars on health, structure, grooming, show procedures, etc. We did a topknot seminar in Friday, and also set a continental pattern on Sat.

Most of all, I loved seeing the comradely of all the UPBA and MCPCA members.... everyone helping each other all weekend.
